A team of GTAI experts for the UK, energy efficiency in buildings and environmental technologies attended the FutureBuild event at London's Excel Centre on March 6th and 7th. The team spoke to many companies about the advantages of Germany as a business location both during the busy matchmaking session and in individual appointments.

Germany's construction market is booming and the country's environmental tech sector is world leading and this was certainly of interest to the firms present. The event was a great success and we'll be back next year. GTAI was represented by Robert Scheid from the London office and Flérida Regueira and Robert Compton from the Berlin office.
